Electro-Poise.
Office of York Enterprise, Yorkville S.C., Aug. 14, '91.
Atlantic Electro-Poise: Gentlemen—For the past five years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspepsia. So completely did the disease make a wreck of her former self that life was almost entirely destroyed, and the slightest noise would throw her into a nervous spasm, which would last for hours. Medical skill failed to bring any relief.
Through the recommendation of an eminent divine we were induced to try the Electro-Poise.
After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its almost normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is rapidly gaining in flesh and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wonderful curative powers of the Electro-Poise, as her case was considered hopeless. If any are depressed on the subject, let them try the Electro-Poise, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispel all doubt. Yours truly, W. M. PRIST.

Between Earth and Sky.

A large number of prominent oil men from the various fields of Ohio, Indiana, Pennesyl-vania and West Virginia, were telling their experiences in the oil fields, says a St.
Petersburg (O.) correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. The ones that most attracted attention was a thrilling one by Joe E. Giehl, a well-known contractor. His story was as follows:

"I was about 20 years old when the excitement broke out in our country and was leading the uneventful life of a farmer's son.
We lived on a farm of 140 acres, within two miles of a prosperous town in Pennsylvania, and there was little excitement for any of us until some of the oil men from O. O. C. y came down and built a rig on the Davis farm, about a quarter of a mile from our place. The greasy fluid was struck in paying quantities. I believe we drilled four wells, and all were good producers.
"No. 3 acted strangely. The day it came in it filled two 250 barrel tanks to four barrels, but we lost considerable oil because of a leak of tankage. The well settled down, now over, to about 900 barrels a day, and kept flowing at that rate for about five days, when it petered out altogether. Just twelve days after that well quit flowing I had the strangest experience that ever fell to the lot of man.

"One day I was walking about the farm when some delayed figure occurred to me, and I resolved to do it then and there. The abandoned well was near by.
Knowing I would be secure from intrusion there I walked into the derrick. An empty candy-box, which I placed over the casing-head, furnished a good seat. Producing pencil and paper I proceeded in my own way to solve the problem in petroleum production. In about two minutes the well began spurting salt water at a furious rate and with such tremendous force that I was hurled high into the air, box and all.
There is no use trying to describe my feelings. I was too thoroughly frightened to have any. All I know is a man of 175 pounds was lifted violently heavenward.

"The column of water evidently struck the box exactly in the centre, for we went up as straight as a plumb line. What is more, I never changed my seat, and in the very nature of things it was impossible to do so. The spurting water was of sufficient volume to entirely fill the box and send a mighty heavy aqueous wall on every side into the bargain. The box was not large, and of course my feet would naturally hang over under ordinary circumstances, but in this case the water threw my legs upwards.
This put me in a peculiarly uncomfortable yet singularly safe position. I sat there, head and legs inclined, so that I resembled the letter V, and was firmly held in that position by the outpouring current.

"I must have gone up fully forty-five feet, but the initial force carried me higher than it could hold me, and I settled back about fifteen feet, all the while maintaining the same position. When I reached the point where the attraction of gravity exactly counters the force of water I stopped. The point was fully thirty feet from the ground.
It was impossible for me to fall either side and equally impossible to fall straight down for the spraying water played into that box with terrible force. The only movement I felt was the alternative rising and falling of the box occasioned by the contention between the attraction of gravity and propulsive force of gas and water. The only pain I experienced was in my legs, which soon became numb from the constant pounding of the water.

"The roar and the spurting water soon attracted the attention of the folks at the house, and after them came the neighbors, all operators and others, until there was a crowd of several hundred people standing around within safe distance of the descending water. I couldn't see much of them, and, of course, couldn't hear a word they said.
Gradually the pain seemed to grow less, and the next I knew I was in bed, and in a dreamy way saw the folks standing around.

"They told me how my final rescue came about. The well ceased flowing gradually, and finally petered out altogether. As the column of water dropped the box with its now inanimate burden, came down with it and rested exactly over the mouth of the well whence it started. I fell over on the derrick floor and was picked up and carried out, and then put into the house."

I HAVE NOT used all of our old but yet I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the most excruciating pain in the throat peculiar to that disease, and the new blood almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more disease—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davis,
